

VOLUNTEER INDUCTION CHECKLIST

The first priority for any new volunteer is to receive a full induction before they start their role or as soon as possible after they start. The aim of any induction should be to ensure that the volunteer understands their role, the contribution they will make to the organisation's goals and to ensure that they can fulfil their tasks safely and effectively. Below are a range of areas that are applicable to most volunteering situations and which you can consider using in your volunteer inductions, areas such as Health and Safety are of course mandatory. However, this is only a template and each organisation should tailor the induction to their own organisational context/ volunteering roles and review it regularly.

Be careful about information overload, a handbook can be helpful, but they may not need copies of full policies and procedures, but an idea of where they can be accessed may be sufficient.

For further information on best practice in the induction and management of volunteers, see the 'As Good As They Give': Workbook Three.
